2. A prodigal; a lavisher.

Bishop Morton told the commissioners, who were to levy the benevolence, if they met with any that were sparing, tell them that they must needs have, because they laid up; and if they were spenders, they must needs have, because it was seen in their port and manner of living. Bacon's Henry VII.

SPENDTHRIFT. n. f. [spend and thrift.] A prodigal; a lavisher.

Bitter cold weather starved both the bird and the spend-thrift. L'Estrange.

Some fawning usurer does feed
With present fums th' unwary spendthrift's need. Dryden.

Most men, like spendthrift heirs, judge a little in hand better than a great deal to come. Locke.

The son, bred in sloth, becomes a spendthrift, a profligate, and goes out of the world a beggar. Swift.

SPERABLE. adj. [spereabilis, Latin.] Such as may be hoped.

We may cast it away, if it be found but a bladder, and discharge it of so much as is vain and not spereable. Bacon.

SPERM. n. f. [sperme, Fr. sperma, Lat.] Seed; that by which the species is continued.

Some creatures bring forth many young ones at a burthen, and some but one: this may be caused by the quantity of sperm required, or by the partitions of the womb which may sever the sperm. Bacon.

There is required to the preparation of the sperm of animals a great apparatus of vessels, many secretions, concoctions, reflections, and circulations. Ray.

SPERMACEUM. n. f. [Latin.] Corruptedly pronounced parmasetty.

A particular sort of whale affords the oil whence this is made; and that is very improperly called sperma, because it is only the oil which comes from the head of which it can be made. It is changed from what it is naturally, the oil itself being very brown and rank. The peculiar property of it is to shoot into flakes, not much unlike the crystallization of salts; but in this state 'tis yellow, and has a certain rankness, from which it is freed by squeezing it between warm metalline plates in a press, and afterwards exposing the remainder to the open air: at length it becomes perfectly pure, inodorous, flaky, smooth, white, and in some measure transparent. Quincy.

SPERMATICAL. adj. [spermatique, Fr. from sperm.]

SPERMATICK. adj. [spermatique, Fr. from sperm.]

1. Seminal; consisting of seed.

The primordials of the world are not mechanical, but spermatical or vital. More's Divine Dialogues.

Metals and fundry meteors rude shapes have no need of any particular principle of life, or spermatical form, distinct from the rest or motion of the particles of the matter. More.

2. Belonging to the sperm.

The moisture of the body, which did before irrigate the parts, is drawn down to the spermatick vessels. Bacon.

Two different sexes must concur to their generation: there is in both a great apparatus of spermatick vessels, wherein the more spirituous part of the blood is by many digestions and circulations exalted into sperm. Ray on the Creation.

To SPERMATIZE. v. n. [from sperm.] To yield seed.

Aristotle affirming that women do not spermatize, and confer a receptacle rather than essential principles of generation, deductively includes both sexes in mankind. Brown.

SPERMATOCYTE. n. f. [spermatocytus, Gr.] A rupture caused by the contraction of the seminal vessels, and the semen falling into the scrotum. Bailey.

SPERMATOLOGIST. n. f. [spermatologus, Gr.] One who gathers or treats of seeds. Dict.

To SPERSE. v. a. [persus, Latin.] To disperse; to scatter.

A word not now in use.

The wrathful wind,
Which blows cold storms, burst out of Scythian mew
That spers those clouds, and in so short as thought
This dreadful shape was vanished to nought. Spenser.

He making speedy way through spersed air,
And through the world of waters wide and deep,
To Morpheus' house doth hastily repair. Fairy Queen.

To SPER. v. a. To bring or pour abundantly. [Sper in Scotland is a superabundance of water: as, that tide or fresh was a high sper.]

Mysterious dame,
That ne'er art call'd, but when the dragon womb
Of Stygian darkness spers her thickest gloom,
And makes one blot of all the air,
Stop thy cloudy eben chair. Milton.

To SPEW. v. a. [sperean, Saxon; spewen, Dutch.] To vomit; to eject from the stomach.

A swordfish small him from the rest did funder,
That in his throat him pricking softly under
His wide abyss, him forced forth to spew,
That all the sea did roar like heaven's thunder,
And all the waves were stain'd with filthy hue. Spenser.

2. To eject; to cast forth.

When earth with slime and mud is cover'd o'er,
Or hollow places spew their wat'ry store. Dryden's Georg.

To SPEW. v. n. To vomit; to ease the stomach.

He could have haul'd in
The drunkards, and the noises of the inn;
But better 'twas that they should sleep or spew,
Than in the scene to offend or him or you. Ben. Johnson.

SPEWY. adj. [from spew.] A provincial word.

The lower valleys in wet Winters are spewy, that they know not how to feed them. Mortimer's Husbandry.

To SPHACULATE. v. a. [from sphacelus, medical, Latin.] To affect with a gangrene.

The long retention of matter sphaculates the brain. Sharp.

To SPHACULATE. v. n. To mortify; to suffer the gangrene.

The skin, by the great distention, having been rendered very thin, will, if not taken away, sphaculate, and the rest degenerate into a cancerous ulcer. Sharp's Surgery.

SPHACELUS. n. f. [sphacelus, Gr.; sphacela, Fr.] A gangrene; a mortification.

It is the ground of inflammation, gangrene, sphacelus. Wijem.

SPHERE. n. f. [sphere, French; sphaera, Latin.]

1. A globe; an orbicular body; a body of which the center is at the same distance from every point of the circumference.

First the sun, a mighty sphere, he fram'd. Milton.

2. Any globe of the mundane system.

What if within the moon's fair shining sphere,
What if in every other star unseen,
Of other worlds he happily should hear? Fairy Queen.

And then mortal ears
Had heard the music of the spheres. Dryden.

3. A globe representing the earth or sky.

Two figures on the sides emboss'd appear;
Conon, and what's his name who made the sphere,
And shew'd the seasons of the sliding year. Dryden.

4. Orb; circuit of motion.

Half unsung, but narrower bound
Within the visible diurnal sphere. Milton.

5. Province; compass of knowledge or action; employment.

[From the sphere of activity ascribed to the power emanating from bodies.]

To be call'd into a huge sphere, and not to be seen to move in't. Shakesp. Ant. and Cleopatra.

Of enemies he could not but contract good store, while moving in so high a sphere, and with so vigorous a lustre. K. C.

Every man, veried in any particular business, finds fault with these authors, so far as they treat of matters within his sphere. Addison's Essay on Criticism.

Ye know the spheres and various tasks assign'd
By laws eternal to the aethereal kind. Pope.

To SPHERE. v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To place in a sphere.

The glorious planet Sol,
In noble eminence enthron'd and spher'd
Amidst the rest, whose med'cinable eye
Corrects the ill aspects of planets evil. Shakesp.

2. To form into roundness.

Light from her native East
To journey through the airy gloom began,
Spher'd in a radiant cloud; for yet the sun
Was not. Milton's Paradise Lost.

SPHERICAL. adj. [spherique, French; from sphere.]

SPHERICK. adj. [spherique, French; from sphere.]

1. Round; orbicular; globular.

What descent of waters could there be in a spherical and round body, wherein there is nor high nor low. Raleigh.

Though sounds spread round, so that there is an orb or spherical area of the sound, yet they go farthest in the fore-lines from the first local impulsion of the air. Bacon.

By discernment of the moisture drawn up in vapours, we must know the reason of the spherical figures of the drops. Glan.

A fluid mass necessarily falls into a spherical surface. Kel.

Where the central nodule was globular, the inner surface of the first crust would be spherick; and if the crust was in all parts of the same thickness, that whole crust would be spherical. Woodward on the Earth.

2. Planetary; relating to orbs of the planets.

We make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and stars, as if we were villains by spherical predominance. Shakesp.

SPHERICALLY. adv. [from spherical.] In form of a sphere.

SPHERICALNESS. n. f. [from sphere.] Roundness; ro*sphericity*.

Such bodies receive their figure and limits from such lets as hinder them from attaining to that sphericity they aim at. Dig.

Water consists of small, smooth, spherical particles: their smoothness makes 'em slip easily upon one another; the spher-icity

SPH

When yellow sands are sifted from below,
The glittering billows give a golden show;
And when the fouler bottom sperms the black,
The Stygian dye the tainted waters take. Dryden.

3. To eject with loathing.

Keep my statutes, and commit not any of these abominations, that the land sperm not you out. Lev. xviii. 28.

Contentious suits ought to be *sperm*ed out, as the surfeit of courts. Bacon's Essay.

To SPEW. v. n. To vomit; to ease the stomach.

He could have haul'd in
The drunkards, and the noises of the inn;

SPHEROID. n. f. [sphaïra and ëidos; sphaeroides, Fr.] A body oblong or oblate, approaching to the form of a sphere.

They are not solid particles, by the necessity they are under to change their figures into oblong spheroids, in the capillary vessels. Cheyne's Phil. Princ.

SPHEROIDICAL. adj. [from spheroid.] Having the form of a spheroid.

If these corpuscles be spheroidal, or oval, their shortest diameters must not be much greater than those of light. Cheyne.

SPHERULE. n. f. [sphaerula, Latin.] A little globe.

Mercury is a collection of exceeding small, vastly heavy spherules. Cheyne's Phil. Princ.

SPHINX. n. f. [σφινξ.] A scout; a watcher. Obsolete.

The sphinx was a famous monster in Egypt, that remained by conjoined Nilus, having the face of a virgin, and the body of a lion. Peascham on Drawing.

SPIAL. n. f. [espial, Fr.] A spy; a scout; a watcher. Obsolete.

His ears be as spials, alarm to crie. Tusser's Husbandry.

He privy spial's plac'd in all his way,
To weet what course he takes, and how he fares. Fa. Qu.

For he by faithful spial was assured
That Egypt's king was forward on his way. Fairfax.

Their trust towards them hath rather been as to good spials and good whisperers, than good magistrates and officers. Bac.

SPICE. n. f. [espice, French.]

1. A vegetable production, fragrant to the smell and pungent to the palate; an aromatical substance used in sauces.

Dang'rous rocks,
Which, touching but my gentle vessel's side,
Would scatter all the spices on the stream. Shakespeare.

Is not manhood, learning, gentleness, and virtue, the spice and salt that seasons a man? Shakesp. Troil. and Cressida.

The traffick of the spice-merchants. 1 Kings x. 15.

Garlick, the northern spice, is in mighty request among the Indians. Temple.

High sauces and rich spices are fetched from the Indies. Baker.

2. A small quantity, as of spice to the thing seasoned.

Think what they have done,
And then run stark mad; for all
Thy by-gone fooleries were but spices of it. Shakespeare.

It containeth singular relations, not without some spice of sprinkling of all learning. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

So in the wicked there's no vice,
Of which the fainits have not a spice. Hudibras.

To SPICE. v. a. [from the noun.] To season with spice; to mix with aromatical bodies.

His mother was a votress of my order,
And in the spiced Indian air by night
Full often the bath g. ap'd by my side. Shakespeare.

These hymns may work on future wits, and so
May great-grand-children of thy praises grow;
And so, though not revive, embalm and spice
The world, which else would putrify with vice. Donne.

What though some have a freight
Of cloves and nutmegs, and in cinnamon sail,
If thou hast wherewithal to spice a draught,
When griefs prevail? Herbert.

SPIECER. n. f. [from spice.] One who deals in spice.

Names have been derived from occupations, as Salter and Spicer. Camden.

SPIECRY. n. f. [espicerie, French; from spice.]

1. The commodity of spices.

Their camels were laden with spicery, and balm and myrrh. Raleigh's History of the World.

She in whose body
The western treasure, eastern spicery,
Europe and Africk, and the unknown rest,
Were easily found. Donne.

2. A repository of spices.

The spicery, the cellar and its furniture, are too well known to be here insisted upon. Addison on Italy.

SPICK and SPAN. [This word I should not have expected to have found authorized by a polite writer. Span-new is used by Chaucer, and is supposed to come from spannan, to stretch,
Sax. expandere, Lat. whence span. Span-new is therefore origi-
